Adams county mailmen today began handling the beginnings of what was expected to be a flood tide of bonus mail.

The first applications for the Pennsylvania Veterans' Adjusted Compensation payments were received late Monday afternoon at the Albert J. Lentz American Legion post here, and some few veterans were able to fill out the forms in time to put them in the postoffice here for Monday evening's mail to Harrisburg.

By this morning, the mailmen who make the rounds of boxes to pick up the early morning mail found that 35 veterans had filled out applications during the night and placed them in the mail boxes. By later this morning the number of applications mailed here was steadily increasing.

Plenty of Forms Today

While the Lentz American Legion post seemed to be the only place in the county where the applications had arrived by Monday night, they were in abundance at a number of agencies this morning.

The county treasurer's office had them on hand for a number of veterans this morning. The first veteran to ask for an application will receive the full $500, bonus clerks found, as they helped the World War II veteran to fill out the paper.

At the local Veterans of Foreign Wars post, a staff was scheduled to go on duty at 8 o'clock this evening to aid veterans in filling out the forms. Included in the staff will be Service Officer Willard C. Weikert and Miss Ethel Sanders and Mrs. Sebastian Hafer who will act as typists. John Hewitt will be present to notarize the forms. In addition, (Please Turn to Page 7)

LIONS INSPECT KNOUSE PLANT, HEAR HISTORY

"The theory that cooperatives do not pay taxes is a mistaken one," M. E. Knouse, president and general manager of the Knouse Foods Cooperative, told members of the Gettysburg Lions club Monday evening in a brief talk at a dinner meeting of the club in the Knouse plant cafeteria where the clubmen were guests of the cooperative.

Mr. Knouse told the Lions that the difference between a corporation and a cooperative is the same as that between a corporation and any privately owned business. "A cooperative is operated on the little-business pattern. It does not hold or accumulate profits for itself or it must pay taxes. The operation of the cooperative is made possible by the investment of its members and they pay taxes at the farm level."

History Of Co-op Told

The Lions were told briefly about the growth and operation of the Knouse Foods Cooperative which was formed about nine months ago and now has 316 farmer and fruit-grower members with $2,000,000 invested. The charter will be re-opened soon, Mr. Knouse said, after having been closed temporarily last fall.

The cooperative, made up of growers in Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia, but with most of them residing in Adams, Cumberland and Franklin counties, (Please Turn to Page 7)

Dog Tag Deadline Is Already Past

It is a doggone shame, County Treasurer Carl S. Menchey reported today, but some dogs are going to go to the dogs if their masters don't get dog licenses quick.

So far only about 25 per cent of the county's canine population has been able to put on the dog with a nice fresh 1950 dog license, and the deadline for securing the canine collar adornments was January 15—that was Sunday, last Sunday, Rover.

The county treasurer says H. E. Oakes, the area dog law agent, has informed him that the approximately 3,000 unlicensed hounds had better put up a howl for their new licenses quickly or there may be some difficulties in canine circles. He also noted that the warning is "nothing to sniff at."

COUPLE TO WED

A marriage license was issued at the court house today to Marshall Elwood Kuntz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Parker L. Kuntz, Benderville, and Mary Louise Hollabaugh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob P. Hollabaugh, Biglerville.

BONUS AND TOYS DISCUSSED BY LEGIONNAIRES

Toys for Tots and the Pennsylvania bonus were the two top matters discussed Monday evening at the regular meeting of the Albert J. Lentz post of the American Legion. The session was held in the post home on Baltimore street.

Commander Paul B. Fox thanked those who had already brought hundreds of toys to the Legion home and noted that all toys to be shipped must be received there by Friday, last day of the drive for toys.

The articles will be packed over the week-end by members of the Legion and sent to Philadelphia for inclusion in a shipment of millions of toys from American Legion posts throughout the country to youngsters overseas.

Hundreds of Toys
Commander Fox said that no count had been made so far of the number of toys donated by Gettysburg residents to the drive but estimated that the number will run into several hundred.

Fox thanked Lawrence M. Sheads, member of the local post, for bringing with him from Harrisburg applications for the Pennsylvania adjusted compensation pay (bonus). The office of Veterans Affairs Administrator Roy A. Alexander was jammed throughout the evening with veterans seeking assistance with the bonus application. A large number of other veterans secured the applications and took them to their homes to fill them out.

INTERNATIONAL SITUATION IS ROTARY TOPIC

The background of current international relations was presented Monday evening in a panel discussion at the regular meeting of Rotary held at the YWCA.

Attorney Eugene V. Bulleit, chairman of the international service committee of the local club, served as moderator for the program, with Dr. Fred Shaffer, professor of Greek at Gettysburg college, Dr. Rasmus S. Saby, professor of political science at the college, and the Rev. Wallace E. Fisher, pastor of Christ Lutheran church, as members of the panel.

Doctor Shaffer compared the present difficulties in setting up world government to the situation that obtained in Greece at the time of conflict between the various city states that made up that country. He compared the difficulties of uniting the city-states with their various suspicions, hatreds, customs and manners into a nation with the present efforts to unite the nations of the world under the United Nations.

Sees Some Hope

Doctor Saby discussed the constitutional and law problems involved in the United Nations. As an example, he pointed out, the constitution states that only congress shall have the right to declare war. "If the United Nations establishes a police force, which it must have if it is to be a potent force in the world, and which is provided by the charter, then American troops will help to make up that police force. If the United Nations police force is used against an aggressor nation then American troops will be committed to war by some authority other than the congress. Thus we (Please Turn to Page 2)

NEW ACCIDENT REPORT FORMS RECEIVED HERE

New motor vehicle accident report forms, which will supersede the old forms when the state's financial responsibility law goes into effect on February 1, were received today at the Gettysburg substation of the Pennsylvania State Police.

The forms are different in several respects from the old ones and include, in addition to the regular spaces for reporting details of accidents, space for information relative to the insurance carried by persons involved in accidents.

Another important change includes raising the amount of damage under which a report must be made from $50 to $100. On the old reports and under the old law, persons were required to fill out forms and send them to the department of revenue, bureau of highway safety, if the property damage amounted to $50 or more.

Given 24 Hours
Reports must be filed in any event if personal injuries or deaths result from an accident.

"An accident causing death or personal injuries in any degree or damage to the property of any one person in excess of $100 must be reported within 24 hours," the law says. "Failure to report may result in the suspension of operator's license."

BULLETINS

(By The Associated Press)
Impelled townsfolk sandbagged levees or fled before the rising Wabash and Ohio rivers in southern Indiana and Illinois today. Further downstream the big Mississippi, fed by all the swollen tributaries, prepared for the biggest flood fight in 13 years.

The historic fortress city of Vincennes, Ind., expects a Wabash river crest of 28½ or 29 feet Friday. But Army engineers say they may save the city from the floodwaters. They say they have the manpower and equipment to hold out the river if it doesn't go above 30 feet. Volunteers—even schoolboys—helped bolster the concrete floodwall with sandbags.

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—President Truman today rejected an appeal by U. S. Sen. Brewster (R-Me.) to invoke the Taft-Hartley act in the current coal deadlock.

Damage to the personal property and furnishings of the two families that occupied the dwelling was placed at about $2,000. The loss suffered by the family of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Folk who lived on the first floor was placed at about $1,500. The owner lived on the second floor and placed his loss at $500. Damage to the building was estimated at about $3,000, but was covered by insurance. One report said defective wiring caused the fire.

The interior of the home was badly damaged with smoke and water adding to the damage by the flames.

The Adams county chapter of the Red Cross said today an investigation will be made to determine whether any of the victims of the fire are in need of Red Cross help. A second alarm for the Littlestown company was sounded about 7 o'clock Monday evening, when the chimney on the property of Mrs. Lillie Shyrock, near Littlestown in Germany township, caught fire. ## 4 MORE INDICTED BY GRAND JURY; DROP TWO CASES

Four true bills were returned by the January grand jury Monday afternoon while two cases were thrown out and the costs placed on the county.

The Adams county jury completed its work of selecting the cases which will appear for petit jury action at approximately 4:30 o'clock Monday afternoon. Because of the late finish, the jury was freed of the usual duty of visiting the county jail, home and court house to report on the condition of the county properties.

The morals charge brought against Felix Yingling and Edith Emmons, both of Gettysburg, was found not to be a true bill and the jury placed the costs of the case on the county. Similar disposition was made of the case of resisting arrest brought against Robert Emig, New Oxford.

In neither case, the grand jury decided, was there sufficient evidence to warrant having a trial to determine the guilt of the defendants and thus the defendants were freed of the charges.

Indicted were Harry E. Carbaugh, Gettysburg R. 1, on a charge of fraudulent conversion; C. Eugene Moul, Bairs Station, charged with issuing a worthless check; Clair Gruver, East Berlin R. 3, morals charge and Paul W. Peterson, Orrtanna R. D., charged with manslaughter.

Trial of the defendants in the cases where true bills were found will begin next Monday, January 23.

RARE SURGERY MAY SAVE LIFE OF DOOMED LAD

A 13-year-old Rouzerville boy, Melvin McSherry, grandson of Edward McSherry, Steinwehr avenue, is in a Baltimore hospital, undergoing treatment which it is hoped will save, or at least prolong, his life. He is suffering from a rare disease which, unless checked, will cause his death, specialists say, in less than a year.

The boy has clusters of cysts inside a lung which continue to grow. "Brownie" entered the hospital in October, through the generosity of a Waynesboro resident who paid all the bills but refuses to let his name become known. The boy recently re-entered the hospital.

It was learned that a noted New Orleans surgeon has successfully performed an operation for this rare condition on another boy. The doctor was contacted and it is hoped that his advice will be the one chance that will save Brownie's life.

Talented Youngster

Brownie has had this rare disease since birth. Last summer it was at its worst. He couldn't keep food in his stomach and he had fits of coughing every night.

When he went to the hospital in October he weighed only 48 pounds. Now his weight is up to 70 pounds. He knows he has the disease—his parents could not keep the knowledge from him, but he is cheerful and confident that he will "get well."

Brownie was one of the smartest youngsters in his class at school, when he was able to attend. He is talented and at Christmas time was given a piano by a Waynesboro family. He has been promised free lessons when he returns from the hospital.

MINISTERS OF CLASSIS MEET

SEEK TALL MAN IN SLAYING OF MARIAN BAKER

Lancaster, Pa., Jan. 17 (AP)—State police hunting the slayer of attractive Marian Louise Baker were reported today seeking a tall man about 26 or 28 years old.

Investigators are convinced the 21-year-old Franklin and Marshall college secretary was killed by someone she knew. They expressed belief that a tall man is involved because of the depth of a footprint found alongside her body.

Meantime, private funeral services—attended only by close friends and relatives—were held today at Conestoga, seven miles southeast of Lancaster. It was in this small town that Marian was reared from childhood by her aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy C. O'Donel.

Seek Automobile
Two ministers officiated. After the brief services, Marian's body, in a bronze casket, was taken to New Bloomfield, Pa., for interment. This is the home of her mother, Mrs. Bruce Britcher.

Police intensified their search for an automobile with blood-stained upholstery in an effort to track down the killer.

Also regarded as highly significant is the disappearance of the girl's diamond engagement ring and an onyx ring with a diamond clip. Both were given her by her fiancé, 22-year-old Edgar Rankin of Conestoga.

Quiz Students
The stenographer was seen entering a car near the Lancaster post office last Tuesday afternoon. Her body, fully clothed and battered about the head, was found on Saturday under a summer cottage three miles south of here.

Working on the theory the girl may have been killed in resisting improper advances in the car, state and local police asked auto accessory shop owners to examine all cars of motorists buying seat covers. Garage-men were also asked to report any cars with stained upholstery.

Meanwhile, investigators continued their questioning of the college student body, concentrating on any students who either were absent from classes or had none scheduled last Tuesday afternoon. About 20 students were questioned yesterday. Police said all were able to account for their movements.

Known sex offenders were being checked in the area, although police said an autopsy discounted a sex angle. A search also was being made for a red plaid umbrella and black purse carried by Miss Baker the day she disappeared.

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—The Truman administration today asked Congress to expand the Social Security program to cover practically all employed persons—a broader extension than the House voted last year. It also asked that benefits be increased more than the House bill provides.

These desires were outlined to the Senate Finance committee by Arthur J. Altmeyer, the Social Security administrator. He was the first witness at hearings expected to last 60 days.

INTERNATIONAL

possibly need some constitutional change if we are to keep our commitments to the United Nations. The need for mentioning such problems is not to discourage the attempt to carry out our commitments, but to show the need for careful study and the problems that can be met and are being met daily in our efforts to build a strong United Nations.

There is cause for some hope in the activities of the churches in connection with international problems. The Rev. Mr. Fisher said, "The basic concept of the Christian church is a confession of the inadequacy of humans and the perfection of God," he noted, "and it is in that spirit that the World Council of Churches has been formed. The proceedings and findings of the World Council have been published in a large volume entitled 'Man's Disorder and God's Deep Design.' Over the centuries we have witnessed the growth of the secular mind, one aspect of which is communism. The church has confessed its failure which permitted the growth of that secular attitude, now it is engaged in an effort to meet that mind and convert it."

The Way To Peace

"Strides are being made, but it is a slow process. Yet what we forget, unfortunately is that the gospel of Jesus Christ is downright practical. To reduce it to dollars and cents, a few years back there was every possibility that Japan could be converted to Christianity."

"At that time we could have supported missionaries in Japan at a cost of $600 per year per missionary. But we contributed pennies when we should have contributed dollars. As a result we had to kill Japanese soldiers. It would have cost $600 per year to support a missionary—it cost $50,000 to kill each Japanese soldier. In plain dollars and cents, the gospel of Jesus was far superior."

"But if the world is to have hope, it must come through adoption of Christ's gospel by each and every one of us. We must have the guts to be Christians. The determination of individuals to be Christians will filter upward and bring world peace, if we have the courage to do it."

BULLETS, W. VA., AWARDED GRID BOWL TROPHIES

Gettysburg college and the University of West Virginia received trophies for having won the 1949 and 1948 Chocolate Bowl football games at Hershey, respectively, at a meeting of the Harrisburg Rotary club Monday noon.

These trophies were given by the Rotary football committee on behalf of the 200 Harrisburg Rotarians to the winning teams in the second and third annual football games sponsored by the club for the Harrisburg Rotary Foundation. The trophies, two and a half-foot-high silver loving cups, become the permanent possessions of the colleges. The West Virginia cup was accepted by Dean Romney; the Gettysburg trophy by C. E. Bilheimer, director of athletics.

Also present for the dual presentations were Roy M. Hawley, director of athletics for West Virginia; Coach Ben Bream, Gettysburg; the Rev. E. Lees, Harrisburg, clergyman, president of the Harrisburg Area Alumni association of Gettysburg college; and Dutch Rice, Harrisburg, trustee of Gettysburg.

Dean G. Ott Romney, of West Virginia, was the principal speaker at the meeting and spoke humorously on the football platoon system.

WILLIE PEP IS EASY VICTOR

St. Louis, Jan. 17 (AP)—Little Willie Pep, matinee master of the featherweight boxers, put his title on the line last night and took it back when he was good and ready—at one minute and five seconds of the fifth round—and Charlie Riley of St. Louis was not ready.

Up to that point Pep had been dancing, almost playing, toying with the little St. Louis Negro who had pleaded for several years for a crack at the title. The first four rounds were all Peps, while Riley stayed on the side of caution.

For four rounds they waltzed around, with now and then a flurry of right and left jabs—mostly from Pep, for the chunky Riley couldn't find a place for his good right. Then, in the fifth, Pep found a place for his knockout punch and let it go.

Pep had feinted with a left. Like a streak of lightning the right came barreling through, an uppercut to the jaw, and Riley hung for a moment in space, his knees buckling. Pep held back the left he had ready for a follow-through. Riley spun 45 degrees and fell flat on his face, out cold.

Pep, who hails from Hartford, Conn., weighed 123½, his lightest weight for a title fight. Riley was 125½, half a pound inside the limit.

Sport Shorts

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—Les Douglas of the Cleveland Barons today held his American Hockey league scoring lead for the 14th straight week. Spurring for five points last week, the veteran playmaker increased his leading total to 66. Statistics released today showed Douglas with 23 goals and 43 assists through 42 games.

Pinehurst, N. C., Jan. 17 (AP)—The air was thick with thought waves today as the football rules committee of the National Collegiate Athletic Association headed into the second of three days of deliberation.

In an orderly scene whose quiet was in sharp contrast to the confusion dominating last week's NCAA meeting in New York, the committee sat down around the conference table for two more sessions wherein it considered the college football rules and possible changes for next season.

Pittsburgh, Jan. 17 (AP)—Heavyweight champion Ezzard Charles is considering an offer to meet Elkins Brothers in a title bout at Washington next summer. Jake Mintz, co-manager of Charles, said last night he had received an offer from promoter Goldie Aherne of Washington, with Charles promised $35,000 or 40 per cent of the gross gate.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—Gilman Glenn McCarthy says he'd like to buy the Cleveland Browns and move them to Houston, Tex., in the new pro football setup. . . . And it's our guess that he'll stand a good chance.

Early in the fall Al Sutphin, who sold the Cleveland Arena at a neat profit, was watching a ball game when Mickey McBride of the Browns came along. . . . "You got out just in time," Mickey growled, adding that season ticket sales were far behind past years. . . . Anyway, the final settlement of the pro football situation looks so difficult that Ray Bennington of the Cardinals claims he's going to buy a house in Philadelphia and move his family there for the duration of the meeting. . . . And, speaking of Texas, NCAA executives were setting up a committee at last week's meetings when someone pointed out: "We need a small college representative from Texas." . . . "That's impossible," replied. "No college in Texas will admit it's small."

NO 'ARM DONE

Arizona's "Pop" McKale, who told that one about the Mexican batter the other day, has another about a Mexican kid who pitched for his ball team. . . . The lad was strong, wild and not too smart and Mac kept trying to convince him he should learn control. . . . The only answer was a smile and "si, si." . . . Finally a situation arose that called for an intentional pass and McKale gave the "put him on" sign. . . . The pitcher cut loose and hit the batsman on the back with the first pitch. . . . Back at the bench, the coach asked: "Did you hit him intentionally?" . . . The pitcher smiled: "Si, Mr. Mac. I save my arm three pitches."

Other outfield aspirants include Jack McGuire, Pete Milne and Mike McCormick. McGuire was the American Association's second best batter at 348. Milne hit 308 at Jersey City. Both are young and fast. McCormick, a 10-year veteran, was signed recently as a free agent after he had been released by the Dodgers.

Among the new pitchers, Lefty Roger Bowman and Right-handed George Bamberger are rated highly. Bowman, a winner in all minors, contributed 15 victories to the Jersey City cause last year. Bamberger had a 14-11 record with the Little Giants. Others include Dick Adair, Bill Miller and bonus players Lou Sleater and Oswald Kolwe.

DUROCHER HAS MEN HE WANTS ON GIANT SQUAD

By JOE REICHLER

New York, Jan. 17 (AP)—Leo Durocher finally has the men he wanted. For the first time since he took over as manager of the New York Giants a year and a half ago, he can say this is his kind of team. The responsibility now is all his.

Openly dissatisfied with the lumbering, long-ball hitting crew he inherited in mid-season of 1948, the fiery leader kept after owner Horace Stoneham to get him young, hustling athletes with speed, pepper and defensive skill.

Although loathe to break up the team that clubbed a remarkable record breaking 221 home runs in '47, Stoneham finally relented. Looped off were such Polo Grounds favorites as Johnny Mize, Walker Cooper, Sid Gordon and Willard Marshall, all sluggers but all slow-footed.

Valuable Boston Pair

In their places Leo now has Alvin Dark, Jack Harshman, Henry Thompson, Wes Westrum, Don Mueller and Eddie Stankey.

Shortstop Dark and Second Baseman Stankey were acquired from Boston in the six-player trade that sent Gordon, Marshall, Buddy Kerr and Sam Web to the Braves.

Stankey, although slow-footed, is a brainy defensive wizard, a pesky man at the plate and an inspirational player. The acquisition of this pair is figured to tighten up the defense and instill fight and hustle in the club.

Thompson At Third

Harshman, a first baseman, comes up with the reputation as a slugger. He batted 40 home runs and drove in 111 runs while prepping at Minneapolis last year.

Thompson, who joined the Giants last July after a successful half-season at Jersey City, played mostly at second but will be switched to third this spring.

Westrum, another Jersey City graduate, is up for his third trial. A terrific minor league hitter, he has yet to show well in big league competition. He will vie with veteran Ray Mueller for the No. 1 catching assignment. Sam Yarns, Phil Tompkinson and Sal Caldeirone, all minor league hopefuls, are the other receivers.

Other outfield aspirants include Jack McGuire, Pete Milne and Mike McCormick. McGuire was the American Association's second best batter at 348. Milne hit 308 at Jersey City. Both are young and fast. McCormick, a 10-year veteran, was signed recently as a free agent after he had been released by the Dodgers.

Among the new pitchers, Lefty Roger Bowman and Right-handed George Bamberger are rated highly. Bowman, a winner in all minors, contributed 15 victories to the Jersey City cause last year. Bamberger had a 14-11 record with the Little Giants. Others include Dick Adair, Bill Miller and bonus players Lou Sleater and Oswald Kolwe.

The board's 585 state liquor stores rang up $180,216,531 last year not counting the 10 per cent state tax on liquor sales.

The tax-excluded sales in 1948 totaled $189,264,075 while the all-time record was set in 1946 when $234,300,832 worth of bottled goods was sold.

Board officials said western Pennsylvania showed the greatest decline in sales and partly blamed the coal and steel strikes last fall.

Profits for the state's liquor monopoly have not been computed for 1949.

Hunter Fined $250 In Fatal Shooting

Skowhegan, Me., Jan. 17 (AP)—Edwin M. Canfield of Norristown, Pa., was fined $250 yesterday after pleading guilty to negligent shooting of a federal Agriculture Department official while hunting deer at Indian Pond township last November 15.

A bullet from Canfield's rifle severed an artery in Grant M. Thompson's side. The 40-year-old Washington man, who died from the wound, was chief of the feed grain section of the Production and Marketing Administration.

$250,000 BLAZE

Northampton, Pa., Jan. 17 (AP)—A fire that swept through the yards of the Northampton Lumber Co., caused $250,000 damage to buildings, lumber and paint. The blaze started in the carpenter shop from an unknown cause yesterday afternoon. Before it was brought under control three hours later it had destroyed the company's main and office buildings and damaged the paint shop.

WOUNDED AS HE FOILS HOLDUP

Los Angeles, Jan. 17 (AP)—"Wait a minute, I think I hear a holdup going on."

Thus a former naval lieutenant interrupted a telephone conversation with his wife last night. The ex-officer, Arthur Drake, 25, reached for a gun he kept in the kitchen of his father's drive-in.

He stroled to the front part of the cafe. A man held a gun pointed at his brother, Harland Drake.

Growled Arthur: "I've got a gun too. Now who shoots first."

The holdup man whirled. Both guns blazed. Both men fell. The intruder was dead.

Drake, a bullet wound in his side, was taken to a hospital and later pronounced out of danger.

Out Of The Past

From the Files of the Star and Sentinel and The Gettysburg Times
FIFTY YEARS AGO

Local Miscellany: George Stock is giving employment to 20 hands at his cigar factory; there are 80 women and men employed at the shirt factory conducted by Hon. Wm. T. Ziegler, and at Oscar H. Reilly's Hosiery mill there are about 30 employed. At this latter factory the hands are working until nine o'clock every evening in order to keep up with the orders. By the last of this week more girls will be employed to learn the business.

The town clock, which has been taking a vacation for the past two weeks, was again started on Saturday night. It was repaired by Jacob Ambrose, West Middle street. The old clock is said to be in as good condition as ever.

The union services of the Week of Prayer, in the Presbyterian church, last week, were well attended.

William T. Ziegler has sold his home on West Middle street to Rev. L. L. Sieber and wife.

Owing to many changes in styles of gentlemen's garments, J. D. Lippy is taking a special course of instruction at the Jno. J. Mitchell cutting school, New York city.

Marriages: Kump-Myers, Jan. 11, at Gettysburg, by Rev. F. S. Lindeman, Rufus Kump, of Germany township, to Miss Emma Myers, of Mountjoy township.

Herman-Young, Jan. 14, at New Chester, by Rev. Cyrus E. Heid, Geo. E. Harman, of Straban township, to Miss Della Young, of Butler township.

Myers-Eckert, Jan. 15, at New Oxford, by Rev. P. E. Heimer, Jacob M. Myers, of New Chester, to Miss Cora C. Eckert, of Hunterstown.

Thoman-Jacobs, Jan. 15, at Abington, by Rev. R. Clare, Samuel A. Thoman, of Abington, to Miss Lydia L. Jacobs, of York county.

Thompson-Starry, Jan. 11, at York Springs, by Rev. L. M. Gardner, William R. Thompson to Mrs. Nancy Starry, both of Tyrone township.

Compliments: The Gettysburg "Star and Sentinel" has reached its century volume, and like the new century, has started in on another. The "Star" is a good newspaper and has an excellent corps of gentlemen at its head. We wish Mr. Guyton H. Buehler, the popular editor and proprietor, continued success and prosperity.

Death's Doings: David McCleary, one of the best known citizens of Gettysburg, died Friday, January 12. He was born in 1848. When but 16 years of age he enlisted during the War of the Rebellion and served for one hundred days, the period of his enlistment. For many years he was proprietor of the Battlefield and Washington hotels in Gettysburg, and at the time of his death was the owner of the Globe hotel.

To the poor David McCleary was a friend who will be greatly missed. To his family he was an indulgent father and husband.

His interment occurred on Sunday in Evergreen cemetery. The funeral services at the grave were conducted by Corporal Skelly Post.

In the County: Many ice houses over the county were filled with fine ice from five to seven inches thick during the recent cold snap.

J. Augustus Tweney, of this place, has purchased the Virginia Mills property, 448 acres in the tract, in Hamilton township, from Mrs. Jennie Miller for $7,425.

A sick of dynamite which was left on a shelf back of the kitchen stove, to thaw out shawed out and also blew out 45 panes of glass in the house of William Chick, living near Bendersville, Monday a week. Fortunately there was no one in the house at the time of the explosion, which made a loud report. The kitchen stove was blown to pieces, all the dishes were broken and two coors were blown off the hinges.

Littlestown was in darkness owing to the Electric Light company being unable to get coal.

Mrs. Charles A. Beck, of Gettysburg, will leave next week for Philadelphia, where she has brought suit in one of the county courts against

Today's Talk

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS
THE UNEXPECTED

A new year is now upon us. I like the idea of everyone wishing a happy New Year to everyone else. But individually we must each do acts that will help to bring this about. It's the unexpected encouragement and kind things done that make happy years.

In the Rev. Francis Kilvert's diary I came across this entry: "This morning came an envelope by post containing a Bank of England note for five pounds and an anonymous line on a scrap of paper 'For the Revd. P. Kilvert's private use.'" I can imagine the surprise and pleasure of that gentleman as he speculated as to who had performed that kind and thoughtful act.

During the Christmas season just behind us, many a gracious act and gift came to give cheer and hope to thousands of human beings. The American Legion is sponsoring a movement by which thousands of toys are to be sent to the children of Europe, and what a lift to the morale of those countries will be these gifts as they plant in the heart of these children the sincere good will of America! The unexpected can do so much. It can plant a smile where many a tear once flowed.

The unexpected comes most frequently to those who do things that bring about unexpected things. Micawber, in "David Copperfield" by Dickens, was forever waiting for "something to turn up." The unexpected good fortune, however, is reserved for those who work to bring it about.

Think about some one. Think of some small act that might give that one a surprise. Perhaps an inexpensive gift, or some flowers, would serve. How the unexpected letter from one long unseen gives a cheer to one for days! To one in business the unexpected order can cheer an entire office.

Unexpected encouragement often works wonders. I have never known anyone to whom it has not brought a smile of hope and pleasant satisfaction. It was that unexpected glance of Jesus into the sycamore tree, upon which Zaccheus had climbed that brought joy to his home, with Jesus as his guest.

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "Comedian De Luxe."

SHEPHERD WITH THE DIRTY HAND

He was a shepherd in a play. Garbed as the shepherds were of old.

To Bethlehem he led the way. Following that gleaming star of gold.

Across the stage I watched him tread. His arm upraised to guide his band.

And suddenly his mother said: "Look at his dirty little hand!"

Oh, shepherd with the dirty hand, My chuckle almost spoiled the scene!

Why can't a mother understand. No faithful shepherd's hands are clean?

Who through the night must guard the flock. Must touch the earth from time to time.

And long before 'tis twelve o'clock His fingers will be thick with grime.

"Just right!" said I in your defense. "And perfect for a shepherd role.

Clean hands had shown a lack of sense.

Your boy has an artistic soul." Superbly played, superbly dressed.

From start to close superbly planned. Of all, I'd say, he pleased me best—

The shepherd with the dirty hand.

SEES PATTERN IN RED ACTION

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP)—Senator George (D-Ga.) suggested today that Moscow may be calling all the signals for the Chinese Communists' treatment of American diplomats.

And a Republican senator, who asked that he not be identified by name, said of the previous internment of Americans and the recent seizure of the Peiping consulate: "I don't think these are isolated incidents. I believe they are part of a pattern."

Another Democrat, Senator O'Connor of Maryland, denounced the Communist seizure of the American consulate as "outrageous."

O'Connor demanded that the U. S. block admission of Communist China into the United Nations. He also urged, in a statement last night, "a forthright announcement that the United States has no intention, now or in the future, of giving recognition to the (Chinese) Communist regime."

George, acting chairman of the Senate foreign relations committee, told reporters he hopes Secretary of State Acheson "may be able to give us some information what influence Moscow has" in the situation in China. Acheson previously has said that Russia is taking over North China areas, including Manchuria, as a part of Communist imperialism.

Ex-Secretary Of Commonwealth Dies

Abington, Pa., Jan. 17 (AP)—Charles M. Morrison, secretary of the commonwealth from 1943 to 1949, is dead at 68.

Morrison, a native of Illinois, died Saturday night at Abington hospital. A newspaperman for years, he resigned his state duties last October on advice of his physician. Gov. James H. Duff accepted it October 28.

He taught school before entering the newspapers field. He became associate editor of the St. Louis Globe-Democrat and later chief editorial writer for the New York Post. In 1921 he joined the Philadelphia Evening Ledger and rose to editor in 1930. He served in that post until 1939.

Morrison left the Ledger to become publicity director of the Philadelphia city Republican committee. He handled publicity for Gov. Edward Martin's 1942 campaign and assisted in Duff's campaign. Governor Martin appointed him to the secretary post in 1943. He was the first secretary to hold office for two successive terms.

To Arraign Youths In Burglary Death

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 17 (AP)—Arraignment of two Erie, Pa., youths on first degree murder charges in a burglary killing has been set for January 30. Charles N. Ploss, 20, and Robert L. Pohl, 17, were charged last yesterday.

Police said Ploss freely admitted that Benjamin H. Swan, 55, a portrait photographer; his wife, Grace, 53, and their daughter, Mrs. La Donna Davis, 33, surprised him looting their home in the suburban town of Tonawanda Sunday night.

Swan was slain in a gun duel with the burglar. Then the women were shot and badly wounded. Pohl, acting as Ploss' "lookout," ran out of the house before the shooting, police said.

State police arrested the youths in Silver Creek. The pair said they had taken a taxi from Buffalo and planned to catch a bus to Erie. District Attorney Gordon Steele said both had signed statements in the case, but he would not reveal the contents.

GUSTAV KRUPP, GERMAN ARMS KING, IS DEAD

Salzburg, Austria, Jan. 17 (AP)—Gustav Krupp, the German armaments king who built "Big Bertha" in World War I and even more deadly guns for Hitler in World War II, is dead.

The 79-year-old head of one of the world's most tremendous arms industries died at his family estate here yesterday. His full name was Gustav Krupp von Bohlen and Halbach.

The aged industrialist had been partially paralyzed since the war and escaped trial as a Nazi war criminal because he was too ailing and senile. Allied doctors, at the time the Nurnberg trials commenced in 1945, said Krupp was suffering from softening of the brain.

His wife, Bertha, after whom the mammoth long-range "Big Bertha" cannon which bombed Paris in World War I was named, was said to have remained at his side during his illness.

He died in a small cottage on the

When your skin has a pallor (sallow complexion) with that faded-out look, or your nerves are jaded and you have that "all-in" feeling, it is usually due to one thing, that is:

BLOOD POVERTY

Your blood cells may be fagged-out or shrunken, and you might not realize it. Even if you eat the "best" foods you may not be getting all the good out of your meals simply because you have SLOW Digestion, without knowing it (or gassy stomach) and as a result you are a victim of Blood Poverty! In other words, your blood is not getting the fullest good out of what you eat. So your blood-cells become worn-down and you have only half as much energy as you really need, you get up in the mornings still tired, and your nerves become dull.

Chapter 8

Valse considered that, deeply thoughtful for a moment, but not offended. People, he had long ago learned, had a way of saying things which they did not mean. And that seemed to him to be particularly true of women.

He found that Wanda Daniels was eyeing him gravely, and he asked an abrupt question.

"You and Saralee good friends?"

"I guess you could call us that," Wanda agreed.

"This 64—who runs it?"

"I do," she said briefly. She gestured off toward a wooded section in the hills with a nod of her head.

"She went that way," she said.

"Thanks," Valse agreed. "It's a pleasure to have met you, ma'am." He lifted his hat again, turned his horse as she had indicated. Being a woman, Wanda probably believed that Saralee had not meant quite what she said.

He came upon her an hour later. Saralee had dismounted, leaving her horse to graze as it pleased. She was standing beside a tiny stream, gazing down into its depths, when she heard him, and turned with a little start.

Looking at her, it seemed to Valse as though the long years had been swept and this was yesterday again. But he knew that she saw a change in him. There was shock in her eyes, so that he knew that she had recognized him. And with it came a little change—a small, indefinable something in her face, a sort of calculated withdrawal which had not been there in the old days. For a moment the silence held, and then he was off his horse.

"Saralee!" he said.

"What do you want?" she asked.

"Saralee!" he repeated. "Surely you know me?"

Slowly she shook her head. Her voice was almost a whisper.

"But I don't know you," she said.

"But you must!" he persisted. In that moment, all the uncertainty of the years, the pain and yearning, were in his face, throbbing in the tones of his voice. "Saralee! You must know me. Won't you let me explain?"

She had recovered her composure by now, and was eyeing him searchingly.

"What is there to explain?" she asked. And then, almost feverishly, she hurried on.

"You couldn't be the man you claim to be. He wouldn't have left me all these years to wait without a word. And now it's cruel—cruel to come and try to get what doesn't belong to you, and to even claim to be alive. Why don't you go on up the trail and let me have a little peace?"

She turned then, almost running to where her horse stood half hidden by a clump of brush. It was like the flight of a wild thing. Valse followed and his voice stopped her. "Saralee! You can't go this way!"

"I'm going," she said. "Don't try to stop me!"

"But you know that I'm alive! Won't you even listen to me?"

"I don't know anything of the sort," she said breathlessly. "Please go away!"

She had reached her horse, and she swung hastily into the saddle, jerked it around, and was gone in a sudden burst of speed. Valse stood where he was gazing after her, his face washed out and empty. He suddenly looked years older.

She had known him—he was certain of that—and knowing him had put wild panic into her heart. Why?

His face hardened. Had she told him simply that she no longer loved him, that five years had made a change in her life such as they had made in him, he would have understood, and accepted it. But when she knew that refusal to admit the truth was keeping Armin Zachary in control of the Gun, and Zachary was the man whom she was now planning to marry—that was a different story; one which twisted his heart and left it, like his face, cold and unfeeling.

Saralee rode, spurring, driving her horse headlong through brush which lashed at her like small whips, looking back over her shoulder now and again with fearful expectancy. But he was not following, and gradually she allowed her horse to slow a little, as the beating of her heart slowed as well and her thoughts became a little less chaotic.

That was Trib Valse, back there—the man she loved, the man she had once promised to marry, the man she had believed dead. Trib. And she was running from him, as from a plague, because she loved him.

For his own sake, she had had to denounce him, to turn her back on him, when all that she wanted—when every fibre of her being cried out yearningly to accept him, to have him take her in his arms again and hold her close, protectingly. To wipe away some of the salt tears of these years of bitter loneliness.

He was changed, they had been right about that. Hair that had been coal-black was white as driven snow. There were lines in his face which had not been there before. Lines of pain and suffering. But whatever he had been or was, he was still the same old Trib Valse, the man she had loved and must love, she knew now, till the end of time. How could anyone look in his face and doubt him, even for a moment? White hair did not change a man that much.

And she had been forced to hurt him, who must have known so much of hurt already—to hurt him almost as much, probably, as the bitter cold deep in her own heart. Yet it had to be that way for his own sake. Better, far better, that he should hate her, and so forget her—better, even, this aching loneliness in her own heart, than for him to return home at last to die.

For that, she knew with a dismal certainty, was the alternative. That reward dodger accounted for the years of silence. And in this country, the long arm of the law would soon catch up with him. He must be made to go on, up the trail and utterly beyond the law. She had taken the way to make him go, she believed, however, bitter. Now her eyes were dry and burning as she rode, and even tears would not come to her relief.

Chapter 9

Valse had remained where he was for a while, staring at the empty horizon where Saralee had vanished. Slow resolution was forming in him. Emotion was drained out of him now. Well, he'd made a threat to Armin Zachary. To kill him. The man had richly deserved that fate for long years, and it was a chore no longer to be put off. It had to be done before he could marry Saralee.

Heavily, Valse swung back into the saddle again. This time he rode slowly. His horse cocked its head, snorting. Alert now, Valse looked about; and for a moment he could see nothing. Then he saw a man, off some distance, watching him from the shadow of a big pine.

An Indian, Valse decided. This was their old hunting grounds, and some still come here. Probably this fellow was lurking with the notion of killing a cow.

The blast of the rifle took him completely by surprise. His first sensation was the convulsive jerk of his horse. Now it was jumping clear off the trail, which had a sheer drop, as Valse saw in that instant, of at least a hundred feet, down below.

Startled as he was, Valse acted, partly by training, partly from instinct. At the first convulsive shudder of the stricken animal he kicked his feet free of the stirrups, and a thought rocketed through his mind: That was no Indian!

Then, as the horse began the downward plunge, he grabbed wildly, and his hands closed on brush which grew there, out from the broken face of the rocky ledge.

Luck was with him now. The luck to be able to get a hold, luck that there should be brush here when there was none on down below. He hung on, not moving and looked around.

Down below, where his feet were, was only emptiness—a blank wall for another ninety feet, with no break such as the brush had found in which to thrust its roots.

His one chance was to go up. With the brush to aid him, he might be able to make it, though it would be a stiff scramble. Still it was only ten feet to the top again. One slip, however, would be plenty.

Valse climbed a little, hand over hand, tentatively. Now he was able to grasp another shoot, and finally to find one of the broken places in the ledge for a toe-hold. He clung there a moment, and considered his next move.

It was unlikely that anyone who had gone to such lengths to get him would leave without taking a look to make certain that the job was really finished. More than likely the killer was already approaching the spot where Trib had been riding. Pretty soon, he'd be looking over the edge of the cliff.

He climbed again, carefully, testing each move, until his head was within a foot of the crest. Then, having a fairly good foothold, and a good grip with his left hand on another bush, he lifted his revolver from its holster and held it ready.

He had not long to wait. He heard the scurrying of a horse's hoofs on the rocky ground, then a hoarse whoa, followed by the creak of leather as the man dismounted. The gunman was coming, certain in his own mind that the job was done, that there was nothing to worry about, but making a routine check to be sure.

He got down on to his hands and knees and craned his rather scraggly neck out for a better look, and then, for the first time, his gaze encountered Valse's, and he looked into the muzzle of the leveled gun.

Marsh's face went slack with shock. There was complete surprise in him.

"Just stay that way, on your hands and knees," Valse ordered. "Move, and it'll be your last."

Marsh obeyed without hesitation. He was too shocked at finding his supposed victim alive and with a gun on him to think of resisting.

On his feet, Valse crossed to Marsh and searched him swiftly, finding a revolver and taking it.

The rifle was in a saddle-sheath, he observed. Marsh was watching him low, backing away clumsily from the edge of the ledge, but not yet getting to his feet.

Valse had recognized him at once. This was one of the two men who had testified to seeing him dead in battle, years before, to helping to bury him. Since they worked for Armin Zachary, the whole thing was clear enough.

"Get up," Valse ordered, and watched him scramble to his feet. "Where's your partner?" he asked roughly.

"I came alone," Marsh protested. "We drew for it."

A new look of fright came into his face as he realized what he had admitted, and he clamped his jaws hard. But Valse was not surprised. He studied his captive curiously.

"Zachary hired the pair of you to get me, a long time ago, didn't he?" he deduced. "And you told him that you had, and got your pay. So now he has you in a crotched stick."

He could see the fresh fright in Marsh's popping eyes.

Then, abruptly, Valse nodded. "I know you now," he added.

"You didn't have those whiskers in the army, and I never paid much attention to you, but I do remember seeing you. So that part of your story is true enough; you were there. And Zachary did hire both of you to find me and kill me, didn't he?"

Marsh's face had gone a little stony. Otherwise he made no sign, no reply.

Surprisingly enough, Valse smiled a little. It was more frightening than if he had scowled or uttered threats.

"Don't you think," Valse asked gently, "that you'd be showing a lot better sense to talk?"

Chapter 10

Sudden sweat broke out on Marsh's face. He read no mercy in the eyes which smiled with such a chill.

"I'll tell you all I know, Cap'n," he chattered. "So help me, I—"

His words faltered, broke off. Valse saw his eyes rove to something behind him, saw him go tense and start to jump aside.

His own training stood Valse in good stead now. He jumped, grabbing the gunman by an arm, twisting him around in front of him. In that same instant, a gun was coughing hoarsely.

Huff was there, and that bullet had been meant for Valse. The bullet went into Marsh, and it made a sort of hollow sound, promptly smothered by the sound of the gun, by the echo of the gun in Valse's other hand.

It was over then, as abruptly as it had begun. He and Huff had each fired one shot. Huff had found the wrong target. His own had made no such error.

With some difficulty, tying Huff's horse fast to a tree, Valse loaded both bodies onto it and tied them fast. The horse would make its way back to the Gun, of course, and when Zachary and his crew viewed those who made their last ride, there would be blood on the moon.

He took Marsh's horse for himself, then rode ahead, likewise heading for the Gun. In his present mood he would have welcomed a meeting with Armin Zachary, but it was Rudd whom he found instead—Rudd, with a good part of his crew behind him, and the bawling of disturbed cattle a steady cadence on the air, like the endless chirping of crickets at night.

The sound, Valse saw with tightening mouth, came from his own herd which had been pushed off the Gun range again, and now were milling restlessly.

Off in the distance, other horsemen were just coming into sight, and Valse saw without surprise that they were his own crew. Rudd, as he came up, gestured toward them.

"I sent word that they'd better come," he said. "To keep yore herd from strayin'. Better get on up the trail till you find—"

The words broke off as his eyes focused more sharply on the horse Valse was riding, recognized it. He looked startled for just a moment.

"Where'd you get that horse?" he demanded.

"Marsh tried to drygulch me," Valse said flatly. "Then Huff turned up. Huff's bullet downed Marsh, as I was usin' him for a sort of shield. I downed Huff. Since Marsh had killed my horse, I traded. They'll reach home on Huff's horse."

Rudd shook his head.

"That wasn't none of my doings," he said. "They must have been doing it on their own. . . . But that's all the more reason why you better move on up the trail fast."

"Hell'll freeze over fore I move on," Valse retorted thinly.

"That's your lookout," Rudd said. "One thing sure, you'll find no grass hereabouts," Rudd added. "Come on, boys. We've work to do."

It was a retreat, but in good order. In another sense it was a victory. They had turned the big herd out, and there was nothing that Valse could do about it, short of giving battle.

Had it hinged only on that one angle, however, Valse would not have hesitated. But so long as public opinion was against him, there could be no real gain in such a move.

There were other ranches hereabouts, and that was the trouble. There was no longer any free range anywhere near. But some of these outfits must have plenty of extra grass. Well, there was nothing like finding out.

Later afternoon found him not so sure. He had encountered several of the landowners in Lundeen's. All had been polite enough. And all had been wary.

Without exception, no landowner could spare any grass. Not even for a few days, for a herd of such a size. They were sorry.

Valse knew that there was another reason. Not only did they wish to keep out of the impending clash, but they were afraid of Zachary in any case.

He was standing in front of Lundeen's sprawling store, when he saw a newcomer ride into town.

Wanda Daniels pulled her big cayuse to a stop in front of him, leaning down to speak to him.

"Good evening, Mr. Valse," she greeted him. "I was hoping to find you here."

She was direct, like a man. And like himself, impatient of manners or conventions when they interfered with what had to be done.

"Valse?" he repeated, with the lift of an eyebrow. "Most folks won't admit to that."

"Are you willing to ride where we can talk?"

Valse's answer was to untie his horse and swing to the saddle. They rode out of town and into the afterglow side by side.

"As for your name—I have to call you something, and that's what you call yourself. Besides, you really are Trib Valse. I'm sure of that."

"Nobody else things so."

"Saralee does," she assured him. "I know she does. She wouldn't be so upset, otherwise."

"Maybe we can help each other out," she went on directly. "I've been trying to run the 64, and it's a tough job. One reason being that I've no cattle. But I've got the range. You've got the herd. My proposition is a simple one. Half and half on everything—partners. If you get the Gun back, of course, that wouldn't be included in the deal."

New Minimum Wage Law In Effect Jan. 25

Washington, Jan. 17 (AP) — The new law boosting the national minimum wage from 40 to 75 cents an hour goes into effect in nine days.

Starting January 25, it is estimated to mean a pay boost averaging from about five to 15 cents an hour for 1,500,000 workers—an added payroll cost of about $300,000,000 a year.

The law, as first enacted back in 1938, did two main things: Arranged a 40-cent an hour minimum wage for workers employed in interstate commerce, and required overtime pay for work beyond 40 hours a week.

The new law leaves unchanged the requirement for time-and-half overtime pay, but raises the minimum pay by 87 1/2 per cent. The government says the 75-cent wage today will buy about as much as the 40-cent wage did when the law was first passed. Figured on a 40-hour week basis the 75-cent hourly wage means a $30 weekly paycheck.

Soft Drink Tax Is Held Unconstitutional

Harrisburg, Jan. 17 (AP) — The Daughin county court Monday upheld the constitutionality of Pennsylvania's hotly-contested soft drink tax imposed in 1947.

The tax, bitterly fought by bottlers and manufacturers, imposed a levy of one cent on each 12 ounces of soft drinks and a half cent on each ounce of syrups used in fountain drinks.

The court in its opinion dismissed a complaint filed by 36 Cola-Cola bottlers, the Pepsi-Cola company and 18 franchised Pepsi-Cola bottlers and nine syrup manufacturers.

They sought to restrain enforcement of the tax on the ground it was unconstitutional.

NOW OR NEVER FOR LAUNCHING NEW INDIA STATE

By MARC PURDUE
(AP Foreign Affairs Analyst)
New Delhi—Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru's government has rejected as superfluous the warnings of astrologers that January 26, 1950, is not an auspicious date for launching the republic of India.

The government of India knows without consulting the stars that the constitution of the new republic is being launched at a most inauspicious time and under most unfavorable conditions.

The new state will come into being under heavy internal and external pressures. The problems confronting its government are complex, and solution of many of them appears impossible.

Can't Await Omens

Nevertheless, India's leaders say, it's now or never. Having come this far on the freedom road, there is stated, and the report stated. The reports are not available for public information nor are they admissible as evidence in any civil or criminal proceedings. They are for the use of the department in studying conditions so that accidents can be reduced and for compliance with the provisions of the safety responsibility law.

The new forms require, in addition to details of the accident, the name of the insurance company in which a policy is held, effective date of the policy and name of insurance representative who issued the policy. Motorists are warned also to report accidents to their insurance representative.

Other questions motorists must answer include the manner of collision, road surface, road defects, traffic control, weather, road location, type of accident (vehicles involved), operator's violations, condition of operators or pedestrians, what pedestrian, if involved, was doing, condition of vehicle, reason for not seeing danger and diagrams of the position of cars or pedestrians.

The new forms will be available later at state police offices, offices of justices of the peace, borough police and automobile clubs.

Three Are Killed In Crash Near York

York, Pa., Jan. 17 (P)—Three persons were killed and three others critically injured today in a head-on collision of two automobiles near here.

The victims were identified by police as Fern C. Hoshall, 39, York R. 5; Mrs. Pearl Lou, 29, York, and another woman tentatively identified as Clara Schmidt, 52, also of York. Mrs. Lau died at the York hospital.

The injured, removed to the York hospital in critical condition, were Donald M. Lau, 23, husband of the dead woman; Preston Keller, 36, of York, and Charles Gohn, 56, of Windsor, R. 1.

Springfield, Ill., Jan. 17 (P)—A statement by Pennsylvania's secretary of mines, Richard Maize, that there is an "extreme emergency" in hard coal supplies has drawn sharp criticism from a United Mine Workers official. Thomas Kennedy, International UMW vice president, yesterday described as "interference" a statement by Maize that a critical anthracite shortage resulted from the miners' current three-day work week.

Chester, Pa., Jan. 17 (P)—A Delaware river ferry which has to run through heavy river and ocean bound traffic in all kinds of weather will soon see its way by radar.

The Chester-Bridgeport ferry steamer "Cape May" is to be equipped with "double-ended" radar scopes, the Westinghouse Electric corporation announced today. With the new equipment the announcement said, it can see its way through fogs, scan for dangers up to eight miles away and as close as its own hull, and see its slip no matter what the weather.

nothing to be gained in waiting for favorable omens.

The clouds that hang over the new nation are so heavy it is difficult to find a hopeful ray of light. Here are some of the more pressing concerns of the men who lead India:

Economy—India's dilemma for generations has been how to feed, house and provide employment for a population that continues to grow by the millions yearly. The Nehru government has declared India must be self-sufficient in food by the end of 1951. Perhaps, with great sacrifice and hard work, this goal can be reached.

Regional Rivalries

Internal divisions—India is not yet completely unified, integrated nation. There are intense regional rivalries. These flared into the open last year when extreme nationalists forced constitutional provision that Hindi be the national language.

Reactionary movements—Independence has given a boost to the popularity to ultra-orthodox and near-totalitarian organizations such as the Hindu Mahasabha and the Sikh Akali Dal. Among India's British rulers were some who feared Indian freedom would bring a theocratic dictatorship, intolerant and isolationist. If their fears ever are realized, these organizations, led by power-hungry fanatics, will be the instruments. Already they are meddling in politics.

A Bright Side

Political incapacity—Although Nehru leads a number of able and talented men in the central government, provincial politics in the new India present a sordid picture. Vindictive personal rivalries, power-grabbing cliques, inexperience and inability and plain corruption have disgusted the public.

Communism versus democracy—India is caught squarely in the struggle that affects all the world in some degree. Her present government is resolved to stay aloof, but India's present government is unlikely to swing over to the Reds. However, unless it can bring some prosperity to India this government may be swept aside like Chiang Kai-shek's.

Such a dark picture cannot be unrelieved. There is a bright side and some ground for an optimistic outlook for India. They lie in the determination and energy of the country's veteran leaders and in the increasing national consciousness and growing loyalty of the masses.

SAVE AT THE FIRST NATIONAL

Let's Have 52 THRIFT WEEKS Instead Of Only One

America observes Thrift Week this year, starting January 17. Benjamin Franklin's birthday, through the 23rd.

But in Franklin's own early years, he made every week "Thrift Week." The witty pages from "Poor Richard's" almanac were simply pages from his own experience.

America needs more of Benjamin Franklin's kind of thrift. We need it in government. We need it in business. YOU need it.

Resolve now to save more in the new year than you did in the past year. Save at the First National Bank of Gettysburg, where you will receive our constant encouragement and cooperation.
